shot with other women. Finally, in 1927, he left me and we have not lived together since then.

"I sincerely hoped we could be reconciled, but early in 1928 I heard he was staying in Paris with another woman," when she was asked if she was not living with him. "I made inquiries and discovered he was staying at the Hotel Westminster with a woman."

Following the presentation of corroborative evidence, including the register of Hotel Westminster, Lord Northwick's counsel addressed the court maintaining that the evidence clearly established that Lord Northwick was guilty of infidelity.

Justice Murray concurred and granted the decree with costs. Lord Northwick was not represented by counsel in court nor was any contention made against the allegations of the wife.

It is understood that Lord Northwick is at present in New York. Lady Northwick, who was formerly a member of the Ziegfeld Follies in New York, is a beautiful young woman, but was very simply dressed in court. She wore a brown fur coat, a black dress and a small close-fitting hat.

She was suffering from a cold and her story on the witness stand was frequently interrupted by fits of coughing.

Lady Northwick briefly reviewed her marital woes after describing the steps to marry into the British peerage. Referring to questions from her lawyer, J. S. T. Reid, she said she met Lord Northwick in London in 1922. After "several months' friendship" he proposed to her, she added, and they were married in Chicago in July, 1923.

"My fondest wish would be to make a trip around the world on that famous ship."

Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur made this remark in a moment of profound reverence today as he surveyed "Old Ironsides," in the shipyard at Boston Navy Yard, where she is undergoing a process of reconstruction.

"That's my dream," added the secretary, "but my term of office will expire before it could be realized. However, the navy has elaborate plans for the old frigate when the work of rebuilding her is completed."

It is proposed to send her to every American port and then around the world.

Secretary Wilbur arrived in Boston from Washington today to deliver several political addresses and to attend "Navy Day" ceremonies at the Charlestown Navy Yard tomorrow.

"I'm jolly glad it's gone through," said Lord Northwick at Hotel Warwick. "I told Peggy I would marry her as soon as my divorce was granted and now when we shall be married is up to her. As far as I am concerned why, the sooner the better."

Asked to elaborate on his remark he was glad the divorce had been granted, Lord Northwick said: "I'm glad for myself, of course, because I wanted to be married again. I suppose Jessica is glad, too; she brought the suit."

Never Said "Blunder" — Hospital Head Testifies

Before the special committee of the City Council, Supt. Dowling accused McMahon, father of dead child, with threatening his life. He also denied, under cross-examination, that he had said "a terrible blunder has been committed."

said that "somebody blundered."

He accused Councilman McMahon of threatening his life. He admitted that John Mary McMahon had been placed in another child's bed, that there is vomit in the hospital and that food carts are kept in infected places.

Dr. Dowling said that unsatisfactory conditions would be remedied when the new medical building is in use, and added that 10 more nurses were needed.

Questioned on the employing and discharging of employees, the superintendent stated that the hospital frequently required to reinstate discharged help, and said he would rather not state by whom the pressure was brought.

He said, in response to a question by Chairman Fitzgerald of the committee, that the City Council forced the hospital to reinstate an ambulance driver who was discharged for drunkenness, and that he was given eight months back pay.

The head of the hospital had made emphatic denial that he said "a terrible blunder had been committed" when he was called to the bedside of the dead child.

"As a matter of fact, I am not dramatic and I doubt if I ever used the word 'blunder,'" he added. "You were excited, and naturally so, and I made allowances."

"And you were excited too, weren't you," Councilman McMahon asked.

"Naturally I was," replied Dr. Dowling. "When you said you didn't know whether you could restrain yourself and might kill me on the spot."

Councilman McMahon did not deny making the threat, and Dr. Dowling would have performed the operation on Mary if her father had carried out his original intention of arranging for it with Dr. O'Connell.

"Dr. Halsey," said the witness, "doesn't do these operations unless in a very special case like yours, but he would have done it had you seen Dr. O'Connell."

Dr. Dowling also denied attempting to "pass the buck" to McMahon and declared the councilman had not pointed out a food cart when they were in the casualty ward.

He further denied naming a number of men to work to clean up the casualty ward following the child's death.

Dr. Harry Cahill, head of the hospital, confirmed in the opinion of Medical Examiner Leary that John Mary McMahon died of status lymphaticus.

Joseph V. Manning, president of the board of trustees, read a statement in which he explained the efficiency of the hospital as a whole issue with Dr. Dowling. He had said 10 more graduate nurses were needed.

Dr. Dowling was the first witness. He testified that he had been superintendent of that institution for 14 years.

NAVY'S HEAD VISITS HUB

Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur made this remark in a moment of profound reverence today as he surveyed "Old Ironsides," in the shipyard at Boston Navy Yard, where she is undergoing a process of reconstruction.

NEW PLACE FOR SMITH'S NAME ON BALLOT

ballots will be distributed to wards in Boston.

He said that printed ballots had already been sent to Hampshire, Franklin, Bristol, Berks, Hampden and Barnstable and could not be recalled. He said both original and revised would have to be used in Essex, Middlesex, Worcester, Norfolk and Plymouth counties.

Hence it was a partial victory for Murphy, despite the fact that his claims of discrimination were not supported by the State Ballot Law Commission.

Murphy contended that voters who intended to mark the ballot for the Democratic presidential ticket would be confused by having the Workers' party candidates directly opposite and might put their cross in the wrong place.

The situation stands a million ballots will be corrected, and the other million already printed will carry the "danger" complained of by Murphy. Secretary Cook said today there was no way to remedy it.

As a lengthy stay chamber session with Secretary Cook and Asst. Atty.-Gen. F. Delano Putnam the state election law commissioners issued the following decision:

"In the matter of the protest of John J. Murphy against the arrangement of printed of presidential electors on the official ballot for the November 5, 1928, election, the State Ballot Law Commission, after a hearing, finds no intention of unfairness upon the part of the Secretary of the Commonwealth and the free opinion, and, in the interest of the public and all candidates and parties interested, will carry out the recommendation of the State Ballot Law Commission."

The one outstanding issue, said Longworth, is "Tammany." "Let the American people see to it that the claim of the Tammany men are kept out of the American treasury," was Longworth's appeal to the voters.

Bay State Vote Is in Doubt, Says Longworth

Chicago, Oct. 25 (INB)—Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the House, predicted today that Herbert Hoover will carry all of the eastern states with the possible exception of Massachusetts, which he considered doubtful.

"I am confident the Hoover-Curtis ticket will capture New York state," Longworth said. "I made a bet to that effect yesterday."

The one outstanding issue, said Longworth, is "Tammany." "Let the American people see to it that the claim of the Tammany men are kept out of the American treasury," was Longworth's appeal to the voters.

GERALDINE FARRAR

Friends of famous Melrose concert singer are awaiting confirmation of reports that she is to marry Charles J. Foley, manager of her tours since 1922. Since her last appearance at the Metropolitan Opera House reports of a love affair does not come as a surprise. This picture shows her as she appeared as Joan of Arc in great photoplay production.

FRIENDS AWAIT CONFIRMATION OF THE NEWS

Friends in Boston and Melrose of Geraldine Farrar, world-famous diva, today awaited with eager confirmation of reports that she is soon to marry Charles J. Foley, personal manager of her concert tours. The reports for the forthcoming marriage of the beautiful songbird and her business manager "related" especially in view of the fact that the whereabouts of both remained somewhat of a mystery. It was believed she is in Hildesheim, Conn., with her father, but friends of Foley in Boston and New York said they had no idea of his present whereabouts.

That the diva and Foley have been in love for some time was admitted by friends of the couple, who recalled that her manager was exceptionally attentive to her when she collapsed in Hartford three years ago after the opening performance of her "Romany Love Spell."

Foley has been Miss Farrar's personal manager since 1922. He took charge of the business side of her career, tours immediately after her departure from the Metropolitan Opera House.

Dispatches from New York were that friends of Foley and Miss Farrar were not surprised when reports of a love affair between the couple came to the surface.

Friends of Foley said they understood he has been in the West, but has been expected back in New York. Miss Farrar has been in Hildesheim, Ct., for some time, friends said, having retired to a place there two years ago.

STORES TO KEEP OPEN MONDAY, NOVEMBER 12

A canvass made in Boston by the Retail Trade Board of the Boston Chamber of Commerce relative to the matter of opening or closing on Monday, November 12, reveals that leading wholesale houses in various lines, and retail stores as well as other kinds of business, including automobile salesmen, are planning to be open all day on that day.

The railroads and other transportation companies have stated that they will operate on their regular schedule.

In principal cities, it is the practice for business to carry on as usual, not only on Armistice Day but on several other holidays, the Trade Board announced.

In New York city, only seven holidays are observed by leading stores: in St. Louis, five and one-half; San Francisco, seven; St. Paul, six; Chicago, six; Washington, D. C., six and one-half; Philadelphia, six; Baltimore, six; Cleveland, six and one-half; Pittsburgh, six; and Detroit, six. Boston now observes 16 holidays.

In view of these conditions, the general sentiment in Boston is to follow the practice of other cities with respect to Armistice Day, the Trade Board stated.

HALTS WEDDING FOR MIND TEST OF SUITOR, 79

By appointment of Atty. James H. O'Connell as guardian for John W. Lufkin, 77, retired Whitman shoe manufacturer, and an order for his examination by two judges, Judge Arthur Dehan in Probate Court today halted the proposed wedding of Lufkin to Mrs. Eva R. Wagner, his second wife.

Elizabeth A. Lufkin, sister of the deceased, who also is the new John L. Cupeland, alleged in the guardianship petition before Judge Dehan that Lufkin was insane and that the marriage license issued to him and Mrs. Wagner was obtained by her and his cousin, John W. Crooke, in an attempt to defraud and deceive him.

Henry W. Thibodeau, vice-president of a Boston bank named as conservator of the Lufkin estate, testifying in behalf of the petitioner, declared he made a surprise visit to the Lufkin suite in the Hotel Brunswick a few days before the wedding, which was held in a large room filled with flowers and a large number of guests.

Thibodeau further testified he learned of a $250,000 gift made on the previous day by the wealthy patient to Mrs. Wagner and this, together with the presence of the petitioner, indicated there were preparations for a hasty wedding.

Today marked the second occasion on which the matter of Lufkin and his nurse have struck a snag.

A few days ago Judge Murray in Municipal Court revoked a five-day waiver of the marriage laws at the request of Lufkin's sister. A representative of City Register McElroy's office in City Hall told Judge Dehan today the new license applied for yesterday would be held up pending hearing of guardianship proceedings.

DOOMED GANG SLAYER IS IN DEATH CELL

Gangster, 22, Brooklyn, N. Y., who is condemned to die in the electric chair the week of Nov. 4, was placed in the death house at State Prison today.

The condemned man was brought to the death house from Charles st. jail where, on last Oct. 12, he created excitement in the jail yard by stabbing Samuel Gallo of Beverly.

Gallo is serving a sentence for an alleged attempt to intimidate a witness at Gallo's trial for murder, and the jail stabbing was because Gallo alleged that Gallo "double-crossed" him.

The condemned man was convicted of the murder of Joseph Pappalardo in June, 1922, on Manover st., North End.

On arrival at the death house in custody of Deputy Sheriff John Horgan and Jail Officer Frank Greer, the condemned man was placed in Cell 1, nearest the electric chair.

He asked if he might be seen by the Rev. Michael J. Murphy, Catholic chaplain, and Fr. Murphy went to the cell. A second priest, who wished to see was the Rev. Fr. Herbert, pastor of the Church of Our Lady of Pompeii of the South End.

Cell made only two other requests—one for plenty of molasses, cigars or cigarettes, and the other for "plenty of soap."

The execution will be the 15th witnessed by Fr. Murphy and the State at State Prison since death by electrocution became legal in Massachusetts.

Nobel Prize for N'colle

Copenhagen, Oct. 24 (INS)—The 1923 Nobel prize for medicine will be conferred upon Prof. Charles Nicolle, head of the Pasteur Institute, whose discovery of bacillus disease carrying properties of lice led to the "delousing system" among the armies during the war.

Beauties Put Health First

In Formulating Recipes

For the Winning of Beauty

Gladys Bond, noted English beauty, says the daily dozen is "the only beauty recipe a girl needs." Gladys is now decorating Earl Carroll's "Vanities."

Gladys Glad, beautiful blonde in "Rosalie" who is famous for her coloring and perfect figure, says she owes it all to care in diet. She consumes several glasses of milk daily "to put color in, and not on, my cheeks."

The advice Georgia Lerch of the "Scandals" gives is "swim your way to beauty." She practices what she preaches.

'HOOVER TURNS FIGHT FOR ME' SAYS SMITH

at Boston Wednesday night one of the most caustic critics of the campaign.

STATED BY N. E. GRIFFING.

The Governor was "eminently satisfied with the general situation. The unprecedented reception given him in Boston and extending down through the industrial cities of Rhode Island and Connecticut yesterday made him feel very confident of New England."

"Certainly," he observed, "these people can't cheer the way they do and then vote the other way."

Governor Smith said one of the most encouraging signs that his arguments are getting over to the people was the fact that in Connecticut and Rhode Island placards were shown in several cities proclaiming some of the points that he made in his Boston speech the night before.

CONFIDENT OF SOUTH.

"That shows they are listening," he said. "And it shows that it is sinking in. Those placards were made overnight."

So far as the South is concerned, Governor Smith has no fear of defeat. "I don't think there's any danger in the South," he said, in reply to a question. "A few days ago he described the reports of Democratic dissatisfaction below the Mason and Dixon line as being due to 'noisy minorities, noisy but not numerically strong.'"

As for the Republican stronghold of Pennsylvania, where he goes tomorrow, Governor Smith said the reports he had received were "very encouraging." He is personally confident of carrying the State, but he stops short of a definite prediction to that effect.

Governor Smith spent the entire day in his hotel suite, conferring with associates and working upon his Philadelphia speech for tomorrow.

READY FOR WINDUP.

After the Philadelphia speech, he will have just a week to go, for he always closes campaigns on the Saturday night preceding election.

He will make his closing speech of the campaign a week from tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden.

The topics of his speeches during the closing weeks have not been selected. Generally speaking, the Governor said today, he thought he would sum up all issues in those speeches.

Governor Smith was tremendously pleased today with the endorsement of his candidacy by New Governor W. Norris, the Nebraska, progressive leader, and the partial endorsement given it by Senator "Young Bob" La Follette of Wisconsin.

He declined, however, to make any public comment on the matter.

He said tonight, when shown the statement in the morning papers of Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, intimating that Governor Smith favors government ownership and operation of railroads.

RETORTS TO HERRICK

"I made my position clear on this subject," he said. "I can't help what Herrick says. Apparently he doesn't know how to read."

Governor Smith will leave New York at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow over the Pennsylvania, arriving at Camden, N. J., at 3:40 p. m. There he and his party will detain and motor through the city and across the bridge into Philadelphia for a big parade.

The terminus of the parade will be the Bellevue-Stratford hotel. Sunday, Governor Smith will attend church in Philadelphia and then probably go to the Maryland home of his national chairman, John J. Raskob, for a stay until Monday, when he goes into Baltimore for a night speech.

Governor Smith returned to New York following from the warmth of the reception accorded him in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut. Certainly no Democrat, and few, if any, Republican candidates for the presidency, ever received the acclaim that was given Governor Smith in New England.

From Boston to New York, through the Blackstone river valley, Rhode Island and the industrial cities of Connecticut, enormous crowds greeted him at every stop, and seemed to vie with each other in the fervor of their receptions.

HARTFORD PARADE.

Hartford was a miniature Boston. The parade there was more of a riot than a parade, with thousands thronging along in the wake of his car. Police lines meant a great deal less than nothing. Members of the Governor's party were snatched and pulled about so much that the train finally left Hartford without eight of them. It was necessary to back up three miles before the party could be collected again.

In New Haven, Bridgeport, South Norwalk and Stamford the scenes were relatively the same. The principal difference was that Governor Smith did not leave his train at these latter points. He simply went to the rear platform and waved the brown derby at the thousands who thronged the stations, and the adjacent streets to greet him.

East and West Swing to Smith, Says Raskob

New York, Oct. 25 (INSP)—Satisfied that "a great tide of South sentiment now sweeps the entire eastern seaboard," Chairman John J. Raskob of the Democratic National Committee today faced the last few days of the presidential campaign with renewed confidence in Democratic victory, Nov. 6.

The unparalleled enthusiasm of Governor Smith's reception in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, Raskob declared, following first hand accounts from the Governor's party, reveals a "definite swing" toward Smith in the closing days of the campaign.

BOY, 12, HELD AS SLAYER OF CHUM WHO 'SQUEALED'

Nashua, N. H., Oct. 25.—While funeral cortège of the murdered boy was passing within 50 yards of a courthouse, 13-year-old Frank Rokas was arrested today for the murder of Adam Goodvitch, 13, a chum and held without bail for trial in Superior Court in January.

Judge Frank B. Cheney is a hostile antagonist of the justice court, was told of Rokas' confession to shooting the Goodvitch boy, a cause he "squealed" to police and broke that their "gang" had no motto.

The boy defendant "squealed" to police, but his attorney effected defense. Another boy, John B. King, nine, charged with looting and entering, was held in $1000 for a hearing later. Making it impossible to have witnessed the killing.

The mother and sister of the Rokas were in court, as were the parents of Minkins, but there was no emotional scene, even when 12-year-old last was led away to a locked up until January.

Spectators were barred because of the publicity already given in case, newsman were almost Police Inspector Edward J. McCarthy was the chief witness and told of the alleged confession in questioning by Chief of Police F. Goodwin, who acted as prosecutor.

McCarthy told of going to state industrial school for boys in Manchester with the chief of police Rokas and Minkins after two boys had appeared there as time after Goodvitch was slain.

"Both boys said they had shot Goodvitch on Temple st.," said McCarthy, "but when Chief asked them if they had a gun behind a clock of buildings, he replied, 'No, I wasn't back at church.'"

The chief then told the boys he didn't ask about being in the church, which was where Goodvitch's body was found. The boys then said they had not shot and when he asked them if they had fired it, Rokas simply replied "he did."

VOTERS ON LIST

The State list of registered voters contains more than 21 per cent more names than in 1924. It was revealed today at the office of the Secretary of State Court when computing of figures was completed.

The Boston list, 20 per cent higher, contains 328,194 names, as against 271,428 names in 1924, the last presidential year—a gain of 56,766 voters, while the State list

HELD GUILTY IN CHECK CASE

Worcester, Oct. 24.—Francis J. Mulvaney, prominent real estate operator and former Georgetown athlete, was found guilty by a jury here today of the charge of uttering a forged check for $75,000 on the estate of the late Rev. John H. Griffin, pastor of the church of St. John the Evangelist, Winthrop.

The principal government witness against Mulvaney was Miss Catherine

A. Dooly of Canton, Boston, hearing engineer, who testified she came into possession of the check while acting as secretary to the Rev. Michael H. Dooly, her uncle, who before his death, was executor of the Winthrop priest's estate.

In her testimony Miss Dooly declared she took the check to Mulvaney with the figures for $75,000 filled in and that he forged the name of the Rev. William H. McDonough, another executor of Fr. Griffin's will.

Early Snowfall

Rhinecland, Pa., Oct. 24.—Snow fell for the first time this season in parts of Schuylkill county. The flakes melted upon touching the ground.

LIGGETT TAKES
RAP AT SMITH
ON POWER

Louis K. Liggett, Republican national committeeman, today delivered an attack on Al Smith on the power question, asserting, among other things, that the Democratic candidate is "a director in the Electric Transportation Co., which is associated with the Pittsburgh Rapid Transit Company."

Saying he was quoting from the New York Times of March 2, 1923, Liggett asserted this statement to Smith: "When we speak of furnishing cheaper light, heat and power, we mean we will turn it cheaper to the distributing companies."

"The system Smith proposes is for the state to own, control and develop its power, only handing it over to private power companies to charge monopoly prices," said Liggett.

That means control of power by private interests, similar to the control of the New York subway and all other Tammany plans. The public would be taxed to enable the state to construct the plant with public money and then let the private companies reap the distribution profits.

"This is what Mr. Hoover directly opposes. He stands for the development of these things by private capital with the interests of the state and nation properly protected."

"Democrats now supporting Gov. Smith—Owen D. Young, Nicholas Brady, Thomas P. Ryan—are heavily interested in private power companies."

RADIO BOARD PLANS FOR CLEAR AIR ELECTION DAY

Washington, Oct. 25 (AP)—Because of the "uninterrupted public interest in satisfactory reception of election returns," the Federal Radio Commission today took steps to insure clear reception conditions from 8 p. m. November 4 to 12 noon November 5.

Each amateur and experimental station, including television sets, was asked to cease operation during the period "if and to the extent that such station causes interference with reception from broadcasting stations."

Broadcasting stations now engaged in sending the returns were requested, so far as consistent with the carrying on of necessary communications, to conduct their stations with the minimum of interference.

CRIPPLED BOY WALKS, FOR FIRST TIME, TO SEE SMITH

Stifford, Ct., Oct. 24 (AP)—Told by his uncle that Governor Smith's train was to pass through the town yesterday, George E. Brand, 10-year-old cripple, hobbled out of his home on crutches to walk for the first time in his life.

He has been undergoing surgical treatment for a number of years.

GO-EDS WIN AT AMHERST; GET BETTER FOOD

Amherst, Oct. 25.—Go-eds at the Massachusetts Agricultural College today scored a complete victory over college authorities when it was announced that no disciplinary action would be taken against those who had gone on strike against the college diet.

Those who were actively involved in the uprising against the monotony and quality of the food served in Draper hall will not be punished. It was stated by President Roscoe W. Thatcher.

He said it was the first protest of this kind against the college and came without warning or intimation to college officials.

It had also been more care would be taken in the future as to the quality of the food and the variety, preparation and service.

FLIER KINGSDOWN-SMITH

MYOPIANS SHIFT LOCALE OF ACTIVITIES, SAYS BETTY ALDEN

Horses to Be Shipped to Granite State for Rockingham County Fox Hunt

TOMORROW IS THE DAY WHEN MYOPIAN NAGS, THE pelted dealers from several North Shore stables make an annual pilgrimage northwest and, strangely enough, it is by steam. They'll not be cantering over East County hills and topping the stone walls that make so perfect a patchwork of the autumnal tinted landscape. Tomorrow they are stranded, roller-eyed and vainly protesting, many a mile by train to Hampton up in New Hampshire. And there they valiantly follow in the wake of the hounds as these pestering animals keep nose to ass's bag (well in lieu of a flensing fox's scent).

JUST WHY THE MYOPIANS, INDEFATIGABLE RIDERS to hounds as they are, forsake Essex County for the strange

FOUR ARDENT LOVERS OF OUTDOOR SPORTS

All in the Norfolk Hunt, not confirm the impression that smart logs dress up any hunt scene, whether the fox is in evidence or not.

miles from Hampton isn't for the mere observer to say. Nevertheless, they do so, annually. Perhaps they consume thus some of the vitality and exuberance not dissipated by their well established autumn habit of riding with the sun to foregather with the hounds just as the quail calls his first "bob white" of the dawn. A score or so of riders, mostly the masculine persuasion, do the rough and somewhat unfamiliar miles that make an irregular circle through Rockingham County.

BAYARD TUCKERMAN, JR., James Appleton, William Stuart Forbes, Augustus P. Goodwin if he is within hailing distance of the start. Hunter, Pinger, Alvin, Scott, well, young James Mandell, Frederick Ayer, these are some of the riders, and there's always a feminine company to trail along by motor, to certainly see some of the start and the finish, and perhaps eight the riders across open country during the run.

SAILING AWAY TO FOREIGN parts is so much the T. Haudsard Cabot autumn program as to have become by now almost a custom with them. A London or Paris bank address in the Social Register has designated a sole ilk with "home" for the Cabots so occasionally Bostonians well might forget that once upon a time they actually had a town house in Newbury at. Even their summers at Dublin do not serve to anchor them on this side of the big pond more than temporarily. Their current departure is via the steamship De Grasses, and already they are a day and a night out from New York, headed eastward for a long stay.

THOUGH BOSTON'S FAS-BENGER representation on the De Grasses is small, individualities predominate in the coler, Mrs. Beall King, widow of the late author, sails for foreign residence. The C. Ashley Hardys are aboard, with their pretty daughter, Miss Allison Hardy, mainly they go for travel and secondarily they sail as part of the recuperation plan laid out for Mr. Hardy, following his recent illness. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Warner have parted with their sub-debante daughter, Miss Rachel Warner, who sails for the old world under the Hardy family eye. Miss Alice Wall and Miss Gertrude Folger, who vibrate between the Back Bay and a French Faubourg, are De Grasses passengers.

BEING AN AUTHOR IS one thing, and shying as hostess to very special guests is still another. Seldom are these two so smoothly allied in one interesting person as in Bangs Burgess, who writes as charmingly as she entertains and who, in private existence, is Mrs. Joseph A. Mahoney of 25 Chestnut st. Over the weekend Mr. and Mrs. Mahoney are having Edwin Markham, the poet, for their house guest, and to meet him at tea on Sunday they have asked in a choice small circle, of the literati and the musically inclined, culled from the set in which they both move and figure so prominently.

NAMES, NAMES, AND still more names! Such a lengthy list of patrons and patronesses as an energetic committee compile for the morning musicale to benefit the School of Occupational Therapy. If a list running into the hundreds forordalms success for the musicals, then will the financial and musical results be everything a devoted committee could ask. Mrs. Gordon Abbott, up in the "A's," is distinctly representative of the staggeringly long array, just as is Mrs. George Saltonstall West down in the "W's." Mr. and Mrs. Mayomur, Mr. William T. Aldrich, Mrs. Helen House, Mrs. Edward W. T. Fairfield, Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Weeks, Mrs. Charles Goddard Weld, Mrs. Guy Varley, Mrs. John Huer, Mr. and Mrs. Henry

Murchie entertained for Miss Janet Murchie at the Dedham Country and Polo Club. That was on Wednesday evening. Last evening motors flashed out to the pretty little Milton Club and the Young Set tripped a merry measure at the dance Mr. and Mrs. Norton Wigmore worth gave for their daughter, Miss Martha Wigmore. And this evening fresh guests will come out and the same dancing set turns late evening into early morning before they depart for home since the Frederick Shattucks are entertaining for their granddaughter, Miss Elizabeth Bissell

40,000 MAY BE REMOVED FROM VOTING LISTS

Newark, N. J., Oct. 18 (AP)—Forty thousand residents in the election districts of Hudson and Essex counties, Democratic strongholds, today faced the prospect of having their names stricken from the voter rolls on the ground that they were illegally registered.

Proposed action against them was announced after the decision of the New Jersey Supreme Court upholding the constitutionality of the state law which gives to superintendents of elections the right to strike from the lists the names of citizens who believe to be illegally registered. The act was the outcome of the investigation of Hudson County conditions by the New Jersey commission.

Democratic leaders interpret the action as an effort to defeat Guy F. Smith, they say the right to appeal to the courts giving voters whose names are stricken from the lists means little as the time is so short before election that only a small part of them will have an opportunity to be heard.

PROSPERITY IS AT HIGH TIDE, SAYS SCHWAB

New York, Oct. 18 (AP)—Charles F. Schwab, in an address today before the American Iron and Steel Institute, of which he is president, declared the United States "as a whole" is still in the high tide of prosperity.

"What I love in the quick turn are unusually favorable. The unemployment which existed in some measure a few months ago has lessened," he said. "Workers generally are now fully employed and at good wages. The relations between labor and management have never more harmonious, due to the wise attitude of cooperation and consultation existing on both sides."

BUSINESS SENTIMENT GOOD
"Business sentiment is good. This is particularly manifest in view of the fact that we are to elect a new president of the United States within two weeks."

"It indicates that there exists little apprehension as to the results of the election and their probable effect on business."

This prosperity, however, has not been entirely uniform, he said, the steel industry having scarcely felt it at all and the steel industry only meagerly.

A maximum degree of prosperity cannot be attained unless it is shared in by virtually all classes and industries, and Mr. Schwab, who asserted that is why the great manufacturing industries of the country should be concerned in the economic problems of the farmers.

MUST CONSIDER FARMERS
"For that reason," he said, "I heartily commend the efforts that have been and are being made to work out the problem of the farmer. It is a subject that deserves the careful thought of every citizen."

In the steel industry, he said, there are three ways in which the stabilization of the industry on a prosperous basis can be legitimately maintained—by stimulating the demand for steel; by discouraging by every lawful means the construction of additional capacity at times when the capacity is already over-expanded; and by the avoidance of uneconomic price cutting.

The steel industry is now operating at about 90 per cent of its capacity, he said, and indications are that a sustained demand will insure a high rate of operation for the balance of the year. He declared it a certainty that 1928 will establish a new record in volume of production.

Street Work to Stop
Fall River, Oct. 18—All street construction work under way by the city will stop Saturday, Sept. of Streets Frank H. Manning announced this afternoon, following a conference with city officials. Shortage of funds is given as the reason.

AFGHAN QUEEN DROPS USE OF VEIL AT DUBRAH

Moscow, Oct. 18 (AP)—The first definite step to put personally into operation throughout Afghanistan the ideas of western civilization, taken by King Amanullah and his beautiful consort, Queen Souraya, at a great Durbar at Kabul, the Afghan capital.

The central part of the personal leadership assumed by the royal couple in the westernizing of Afghanistan was the dowering of her veil by Queen Souraya.

American Authors Pick Leroy Scott for President

New York, Oct. 18—Leroy Scott, novelist, in the new president of the Authors' Guild of America.

He was elected at the annual meeting of the organization, and Robert W. Chambers was secretary and Edwin S. Cobb treasurer.

VAUDEVILLE ACTOR IS ARRESTED FOR ROBBERY

The vaudeville team of Stone and Harlow stopped off the small time street for a turn in Chicago "old time" for Stone left Boston in custody of a Chicago detective to face a charge of robbery. Miss Harlow, in private life Mrs. Stone, was along, too, to assist in preparing his husband's defense. Stone was arrested as he took a curtain call in the Grand Theater, Chicago.

Stone is wanted for the seizure of Samuel Goldberg of Chicago, who was robbed at airport, of $100. Stone and his wife formerly lived at the same address.

Strawberries Will Be Cheaper in Hub Now

Washington, Oct. 18—Boston buyers, who delight in strawberries out of season will have their hearts gladdened by a decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The commission has decided that the freight rates on strawberries shipped from South Carolina to Boston are too high and has ordered a rate cut.

TALK-MOVIE UNREAL, SAY LONDON CRITICS

London, Oct. 25 (AP)—Londoners new their first complete picture from the picture last night and today newspaper reviewers either damned it with high praise or scolded it unmercifully.

The picture was "The Terror" and much of the adverse criticism was directed at the film itself. The general verdict, however, was that it was a masterpiece of the kind of picture which is usually called "talk-movie."

GOODWIN URGES MORE DRASTIC AUTO RISK LAW

By BERT FORD

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts is not adequately protecting the general public or its 150,000 licensed automobile owners under the compulsory insurance law. That charge was made today by Frank A. Goodwin, former registrar of motor vehicles, who is backed up as a national authority on the subject.

Goodwin said that the state can not hope properly to safeguard car owners and the great mass of pedestrians until it places a more drastic and complete insurance law upon the motor vehicle within its limits, under substantial bond and creates a state fund for speedy and equitable settlement of claims.

His outline of three automobile insurance companies in the state last year and announcement by Art Lincoln, state insurance commissioner, that the state will have a deficit of $100,000 in the state fund for the year ending June 30, 1929, have developed a situation of vital interest to every person in the state.

"The Boston Evening American," said Goodwin, "is performing a public service in stressing the importance of this problem."

"Compulsory insurance not only affects automobile owners but every citizen who is in danger of being hit by one during most of his working hours."

The answer to your first question, "Does compulsory automobile insurance really insure?" should be divided into two parts, first, that which affects automobile owners, and second, that which affects the public.

"Of course, under the compulsory insurance act, both the automobile owner whose life and safety are always in danger and the public are protected in the greater measure than before the act was passed."

Before the passage of the act only one-third of the persons owning automobiles were insured or were insured for less than $10,000. If compulsory insurance were not in effect, 40,000 of these 40,000 and the heirs of the 60,000 persons killed would have been unable to get compensation.

"Under compulsory insurance we are not, of course, able to get 100 per cent financial responsibility, but it is approximately twice that point."

"Your second question, 'Is the Commonwealth of Massachusetts adequately protecting its 150,000 car owners whom it insures?' is answered in the affirmative by the fact that it is the best answer that can be given in the present state of affairs."

When the Commonwealth of Massachusetts says to automobile owners: 'You must be insured before you can operate your car on the highway,' the first obligation on the part of the state is to see that all insurance companies are permitted to do business and take your money as financial responsibility.

"Compulsory insurance was put through to make car owners financially responsible and the state should recognize the fact that insurance companies are financially responsible."

"Last year thousands of car owners who were forced to go up to the counters of insurance companies and part with their money, were notified during the year by the registrar of motor vehicles that the companies they had bought were worthless because of the collapse of their respective companies and that if they wanted to keep their registration they would have to go to some other insurance company and pay out more of their money for a new policy."

"The Manufacturers' Liability Company from New Jersey issued between $600 and 10,000 of our licenses and afterwards went into the hands of a receiver."

"The Mutual Motor Company and the Independent Tax Company were also forced to suspend last year to the great inconvenience and loss of many car owners."

"This year, Acting Commissioner of Insurance Lowell announced that he would suspend last year to the great inconvenience and loss of many car owners."

BROWN ALL SET FOR TUFTS

Providence, Oct. 26.—No action session was held by the Brown football squad this week, and Tufts is destined to catch the first efforts of a team that is out to subvert itself after the poor showing of New Haven last Saturday.

Although McLaughery came out against the two team idea in his condemnation of the work at Yale, he has announced that the team will be worked as units for another week at least, while the backfield may or may not be worked intact.

Lincoln Piquette, star of the backfield combination, continues to watch the practice from the sidelines, for injuries have kept him out of all work this week, and he will not be a starter in the Tufts game. Harry Cornsweat, brother of Piquette and injured at New Haven, is out until next week.

MR. BOSTON Bu Jack Conway

"FIND that the young men who risk their money on the result of football games are inclined to the belief that Dartmouth will smother Harvard and that Yale will upset the Army in the big week-end football clashes," declared Mr. Boston today.

"The experts also hold similar opinions. 'I do not take the views of the experts as seriously as I do those of the fans with the speculative tendency. In the case of an expert, he can always talk about fumbles, a slippery field, severe injuries and such little things if he happens to have guessed wrong.

"The young men who wager heavy dough on sporting events cannot afford to be so much. They must pick their right in the majority of cases or else become familiar with hard work. And once a person gets into the speculative end of the sporting racket there isn't anything which he detests as much as he does the mention of the word work.

"Perhaps the thought that a great many of the West Point players have been in the football racket for a generation or so weighed heavily on the mind of the youthful Harvard players. Anyhow, the Crimson didn't look like an outfit that would worry any first class opposition. So it is probably natural that the speculative element is stringing along with Dartmouth.

"Of course, if the Crimson happens to tip the dice over, everybody who bets on Dartmouth will admit they were wrong and cheerfully look forward to next business.

"The enthusiastic, Joe Calhoun, who writes very good football, tells me he expects Yale to beat the Army. Joe says Yale always has a strong football team.

"We know Yale is good, but the Army is probably a whole lot better than it showed against Harvard. In the event the West Point boys are obliged to let out, they could probably pile up quite a flock of points.

"Of course I know that you are not having any trouble getting plenty of tickets for the Harvard-Dartmouth or the Army-Yale game."

FUENTE WILL BOX GAGNON IN FEATURE

Tony Fuente of California and Jack Gagnon of New Bedford, two hard hitting heavyweights, will top the fight card for the Mike Burke Memorial to be held at the Boston Arena next Tuesday night.

This bout was made possible yesterday through the grace of the Massachusetts Boxing Commission, which lifted the suspension on Fuente in order that he would be able to participate in this worthy charity.

As Fuente had signed a contract to meet Gagnon before he accidentally fouled Bob Mills here, the commission ruled that the Mexican will be allowed to go through with his contract and the action of the local boxing commission was greeted with enthusiasm by members of the testimonial committee.

These heavyweights will clash in the feature around bout of the show and as they met six weeks ago in Providence in one of the best bouts ever witnessed there between big men, this fans are anticipating some real action.

Both men are training hard for this bout as each regards this event as important, in fact promoter Moulton has promised to give the winner an early date.

With all other four-round bouts on the card, each of which is expected to prove highly contested, as well as a number of exhibition bouts between resplendent top-heavy, this boxing gem home up as the best of the season, and no doubt a knockout throng will be on hand.

N. Y. Clubs Quit Soccer League

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—Protest against what it termed an invasion of the right, the Southern New York State Soccer Football Association has resigned from the United States Football Association, thus ending another chapter in the so-called "soccer war."

Of the total membership of approximately 17 clubs, all but five supported the State association's action taken at a special meeting last night.

POLITICAL FORUM

Says Policy of Hoover to Smith in Nation

of Hoover's position. Now is it necessary to quote Mr. Hoover on this point.

It would have been the established policy of the Federal Government, instituted by a Republican administration and followed consistently ever since, to regulate rigorously the use of the natural resources of the nation.

EXPLAINS POLICY

Much of these resources is the property of the States, and it is for each State to decide what it shall do with its own.

But the national forest are administered under the most stringent Federal regulation, so stringently that, that many of the States have rebelled.

The mining laws have carefully limited the rights of individuals and corporations who would open up under them, and all the oil in the country derived from lands not actually State or private property is extracted and sold in accordance with the laws of the Federal Government.

The government has undertaken great irrigation works, but that have benefited the people, not excluded them.

In other words, the policy of government is to regulate the use of the natural resources of the country, and to see that the Federal Government is not financially embarrassed by the use of its own resources.

Mr. Hoover would not let this expense and political machinery but would make it so that the various lumber, mining, oil and water projects on government land should be operated only under certain conditions, which would protect the public interest.

"I do not want to be misunderstood on this point," he said in New York speech. "It is my policy and my belief that the Federal Government should not be in part with one lot of its natural resources without protection to the public interest."

A few men in other previous administrations, either as Secretary of the Interior or as Secretary of the Navy, and they were succeeded by the Federal Government, of which Mr. Hoover was a part.

Mr. Hoover's policy is of no importance to Mr. Smith's nomination. Mr. Hoover would sacrifice the nation's forests, and minerals, and the powers to private interests, regardless of the public interest, if Mr. Hoover's fall and sensible statement "One of the great problems of the government is to see to what extent the government shall regulate and control the use of the natural resources of the country."

That shows the difference between the politician and the statesman; one carefully examining every question, the other uttering a lot of generalities in an effort to get votes.

To break the backs of the Democrats, Mr. Hoover's policy is the only one that the Republican candidates will not back. Mr. Hoover's policy is the only one that the people have more confidence in the candidate who will use his head before he speaks.

This is another of the distinctions between the two candidates. Mr. Hoover's policy is the only one that the people have more confidence in the candidate who will use his head before he speaks.

Governor Smith has his argument, and a good one, but he does not have to concede that the country is larger than he is different from New York.

Many of the issues of which he speaks are purely State affairs, his water power project and his social legislation. He would be handled by the various States on their merits.

He referred to his fight with the New York Republican leaders, but he did not say that these men did not want to see the presidential nomination go to Mr. Hoover, they were afraid of his liberalism.

Mr. Hoover was nominated by the people, not the politicians. Mr. Woodrow Wilson was nominated at Baltimore in 1912 against Mr. Taft, and Mr. Taft was elected in 1917 against Mr. Wilson. Mr. Hoover was nominated by the people, not the politicians.

of the degree of Doctor of Law of this University."

In this connection I am reminded of the report made by a group of distinguished educators, headed by Professor John Dewey of Columbia, on Governor Smith's record on public education.

"His whole attitude on education has been one of foresight and progress. Whether it was the creation and strengthening of the system of special classes for exceptional children or supporting the program for continuation schools and schools for vocational training, or maintaining the standard of State teacher's salary, for teachers, he has always been ready to take his position with the most advanced thought on the subject."

Under Governor Smith the Normal schools of the Empire State have been so added and developed that the enrollment has increased from 1909 to 1919 to 1783 in 1919.

Self-educated, he knows how hard the way is, and he would save the young Americans. Under his leadership, the State has made the death of the father made it necessary for the mother to be a widow, and he would save the young Americans. Hasten the Day

The Time Will Come When American Education Will Get Unlimited Financial Support, Says E. A. Filene

Edward A. Filene, Boston merchant, told educators assembled in this city the other day that the time would come when "there would be unlimited financial support for American education."

It cannot come too soon.

He also declared that university and college teachers "are not so well paid as clerks."

His statement holds good for teachers all down the line, from university department heads to the teacher in the common schools.

We cannot get what we do not pay for. We cannot get and we cannot hold, the best minds of the country in teaching, unless we are willing to pay them a wage competitive with what they are offered in business.

What is more precious than the minds of our children? And yet, a great merchant tells us the highest members of the profession of instructors "are not so well paid as clerks."

Heavy Registration

It Proves the American People ARE Interested in Politics and Political Campaigns

They have been telling us for a generation that it is impossible to get the American people interested in politics and political campaigns.

That hoary adage is dead, slain by the stupendous registration figures.

The truth is that for years, in national elections, the people have felt that the difference between the Republicans and the Democrats is about the difference between Tweedledum and Tweedledee.

They have been electing the Republicans, less from any profound conviction than from a feeling that, in all, they knew pretty well what the Republican machine would do if put in power, whereas they were not quite so certain about the Democratic machine.

This year it is different. The electorate is stirred by profound issues that reach down deep into their souls. To millions and millions of our fellow citizens it makes all the difference in the world whether the Democrats or the Republicans sweep into power on November 6. So they have rushed into the registration booths and dragged their friends after them.

In 1924 we had twenty-nine million people voting. The prospects are that forty million will vote in 1928.

Let us all hope this year may set an example, that 1928 may be known as the year that marked the revival of the interest of the American people in politics.

Fair Weather Insurance

The Whole Country Is Eager to Enjoy the Autumnal Months Outdoors

This is the time of year when the Weather Bureau comes in for vigilant attention. Football is in full swing. The whole country is eager to enjoy the Autumnal months outdoors before the big fingers of Winter clutch on the land.

Mark Twain long ago observed that the weather was a thing beyond control, because people were complaining about it all the time and nothing was done about it ever. Yet we have discovered a simple and certain method of regulating climatic conditions locally. The plan has been tested secretly for a month and seems to have proved its effectiveness sufficiently to reveal to all our readers.

When sunny weather is desired and the day dawns with dubious clouds in the offing, carry an umbrella in preparation for rain. The umbrella may be an encumbrance, but it will not have to be raised. There is rarely or never rain when one is ready for it. If fair weather is necessary, carry a waterproof coat with the umbrella. The added precaution will make rain virtually impossible. If fair weather is vital to the business or pleasure of the day, slip on a pair of galoshes, tuck the umbrella under your shoulder, drape the waterproof coat over your arm and the possibility will be automatically eliminated. The storm gods will realize the futility of trying to drown you.

This discovery may be scoffed at by cynics, but a splendid opportunity to test it conclusively is coming to us. Let every person who has bought a ticket for the football games get out his umbrella, raincoat and galoshes now, to be worn on the day of each game. Let him wear them on those days, regardless of the weather, from the moment he steps out of his home in the morning. A thousand to one not a drop of rain will fall.

More Equality

The Golf Club Is One of the Last Strongholds Fighting Equality of the Sexes

We are to have a Women's National Golf Association, with independent control of all golfing affairs of women in America. It is high time.

The golf club is one of the last strongholds fighting the equality of the sexes. A professional woman may pay her full club dues, discharge every obligation of membership exactly like a man, and yet find herself barred from the course on Saturdays and Sundays, the only days when she is free. Women are not barred because they are idle; all the male duels are allowed to play on holidays to their hearts' content.

As a matter of fact, none but the very best men players would dare meet our best women in a holiday contest. At Hot Springs, Glenna Collett, in the national women's championship, got a 36 on a course with a stiff men's par of 36.

NOT INTENDED TO BE PERFECT YET

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Said Poor Richard, holding a little dialogue with himself:

"Who is wise?"

"He that learns from every one."

"Who is powerful?"

"He that governs his passions."

"Who is rich?"

"He that is content."

"Who is that?"

"Nobody."

So let's give it up! We will be happier if we do. Let's give up seeking the perfect men.

The philosopher-slave of the Roman age, Epictetus, wrote: "To look for the fig in winter is the madman's act."

Looking for faultless humans is searching for winter figs. We are intended to be perfect—yet.

We are intended to grow. That is what you are here for. That is what all the others are here for.

Imperfection is everywhere—the dead point in the turn of the wheel, the blind spot in the human eye, "dead spots" on the face of the earth where radios refuse to function.

And especially in the characters of men, imperfections great and small. "Man partly is and wholly hope to be."

Let it go at that. Cease the endless disappointments caused by seeking the winter figs of human perfections.

As Prof. Potter observes, this world is not a completed orchestra playing endless harmonies.

It is a piano factory where pounding, sawing, odds and ends, shavings and sawdust fill the room.

It is a place of preparation, but out of it in the end will come music.

If you conceive of this world as finished, you are surprised and continually saddened by seeing imperfections in those around you. It puts your attention upon the failures.

If you think of it as a place of growth, you have your eye alert to see the unfolding buds of character and you tend to judge men on the far sounder basis of their development rather than upon their attainment alone.

When a building is in the process of erection there is much confusion of saws and hammers and much scaffolding. One who would judge the building while it is going up is a poor judge. When a tree is growing the apples are hard and bitter. A pessimist is one who tastes the growing fruit and says that all fruit is bad.

To judge anything in this world that is alive without taking into account the factor of growth is to arrive at erroneous conclusions.

LISTEN, WORLD!

HAVE before me a letter from a liar

I have great sympathy for patience with liars, for I am one myself and I know how they get that way.

This liar has gotten herself into a jam as Lars inevitably do, she has told not one lie, but many. In fact, as she desperately surveys her condition, she realizes that her life is built on lies. She is doing all sorts of things she does not wish to do because she has been trapped by her own dishonesty and pretence.

As you can imagine, she feels pretty mad about it all. So she has sought the relief of an anonymous letter in which she pours out the whole sorry mess to me. Can I help her? Perhaps. As one liar to another I can, at least, try.

In the first place, back up, old girl. You're a stiff fight before you and it don't help you to go into it feeling like a ditch digger. Be properly sorry and mad at yourself by all means, but don't lose all faith in yourself for you'll need all the healthy pride and self-respect you can summon in the scrap ahead of you. So don't grovel. And don't say you're bad.

You didn't tell me. You don't have a perverse dream that you are a person of great intellect and have the greatest admiration for the truth, and yet you are a liar. You could understand that fact. You lied because you were cowardly and greedy and lazy and silly and vain. And if you want out of your lies you must fight, not your general.

The desire of knowledge, like the desire of riches, increases with the acquisition of it. —Storace.

He who serves the public is a poor man; he who serves himself is a rich man and an one thanks him for it. —Goethe.

The "rain" or "whisk" of a man is, of all his virtues, the most difficult to say, so much as would be given for the use of his tongue. —Jobbace.

I have twenty years hence by the memory of it. —Smith.

diplomacy, but the qualities which count that diplomacy.

It won't do you much good to say, "I'll stop lying." That's no vague statement—it doesn't, it's just a definite course of action. You must say, "I will stop lying on cowardly, lazy, greedy and selfish lies."

"But how can I under the tongue I'm in?" cries the poor liar.

Partly by not telling any more lies and partly by telling the truth.

Partly by not being so exceedingly selfish and cruel. They are so bent on their own salvation that they so sound saving their souls without the slightest regard for the other fellow's comfort.

You have involved other people by your lies. They have learned to depend on you. They have built their lives upon your word.

So be back in destroying their confidence in you, or in wrecking their plans, just because you years for the blessed relief of honesty.

Then and come your own, make as much as you possibly can.

If you absolutely must make a clean breast of things, do so and take your own low you've fallen.

Take your own low you've fallen. Take your own low you've fallen. Take your own low you've fallen.

The truth does set us free, it rarely sets us free permanently.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Thoughts while strolling: A shop called "We Fix It." The preacher who became a night hawk taxi driver, Maurice's widow—Eleanor Ambrose. There are people who actually look like Andy Gump. George M. Cohan, a Providence, R. I. boy, who made good in the city. The sky-line caulked with glue.

Those trotting. Stopped horses. The craze for window flower boxes in office buildings. The reformer who sold for 10 cents automobiles back firing. People who do their reading in public parks. Cartier, the swank jeweler, turned policeman twirling their whistles.

Apartment houses that never finish "For Rent" signs but don't let them go. The man who sells bronze plates reading "Vacancies." People who will wear any "hook" A tiny Pete with a huge mustache. Looks like my old man in the Yukon. A wheel rolls off a nail and a block breaks free. Vincent Auriol's heavy hat. The theatrical producer who sneaks publicity by featuring one of a show.

Whatever because of that 10-year-old chess prodigy? A French doctor with an Irish head waiter, Beggarly Women buyers with such common sense for musical shows. And let's a Chinaman, Jules Etienne, the New Yorker. Even hotel detective has an air of mystery. Nice boys, the house dicks. Rich, very rich! "That lady must get out of town!"

The hot dog vendor who cries "Warm spuds." Paul Whitehead's car with the extra sized door. That "Wet Paint" sign wasn't there. The theory concerning the Press agents became public relation boys. "How many are 'hook' Will Expertise." Never hear of children morose, any more. There was an ailment.

Margaret Livingston. What a superb actress in her day! And her country husband, Major Flowers. New York's abrupt "Keep Off" signs.

A HEAVY spending in Broadway established a new high record for his art last week. He took an elaborate dinner, ate for 10 cents, tipped the head waiter $100, the waiter $50, the waiter $25 and the hat checkers $10 each. The dinner was $25 a plate. I wonder if anyone knows of a place where a thin guy on a diet can get a good dinner for around $5 three days.
